

DECENCY IN BUSES

Iheonye Orunta

Port Harcourt.

KINDLY allow me the opportunity through this medium of thanking the military government of Biafra in providing the oil city of Port Harcourt with the new buses.

In the past we had been subjected to untold inconveniences as far as transport was concerned, some market women carrying their cooking utensils in the buses, mechanics robbing their greasy gowns on people.

In as much as I am not trying to create class distinction, it would be appreciated if we maintain decency for it would not augur well for someone who dressed well for his office work to be soiled.

So in my opinion we should maintain decency by all means and the authorities should do well by giving instructions to the conductors or conductress to refuse entry into the buses anything which they feel is an inconvenience to the other passengers.
